[REDACTED] you will probably want to shoot me. However, a few things have come up the past week which I wanted to include in my article so it has been redone and is attached with footnotes. The other copy can be trashed. Thanks for your understanding. One problem with CT stuff is that it is dynamic and forever changing. Thank you.

b6 -2

I have attached a rough draft of the section of my dissertation that involves FBI criminal cases along with the notes from the two latest cases I have been working on. As you will be able to tell from the draft dissertation, I will need to continue to work on additional sections from some of the already "completed" cases. The next phase is to fill in some of the missing information through interviews with agents involved in the cases.

To date, I have been working exclusively on FBInet with this section, but if I can have this section with the notes dropped to the Unclass system that would be a tremendous help, as this section will need to be merged with the other chapters (Intro, Lit Review, and Methodology chapters).

Again thanks.

Hi [redacted]

I had a question for you regarding my dissertation progress. I have been collecting criminal case file information so I can conduct case analyses. To date, I have been collecting and analyzing each case, then writing-up the cases as I complete them. But I wanted to know if I could send you the notes I collect in advance, so I could possibly do the analyses and write-ups from home. I have been working on this after hours and it has been very taxing, especially to come in on a weekend as well when it takes an hour to get to my building without the I-95 traffic. Any advice would be greatly appreciated. Thanks.

For anyone mentioned by their actual name in the paper, the person's name should be available to the public (unless I missed something). My intention is not to mention anyone by their real name in the actual paper unless the real name was made public. To help facilitate the writing, when necessary, I have made names up, so as not to disclose actual names. These names are generally with quotes around them or I used general phrases like "the victim." With the notes, I tried to cross reference the material but probably was not as vigilant as when drafting the paper. Needless to say, all of the cases I have been using are prosecuted cases that have been adjudicated in some fashion (rather plea bargain or trial).

Hope this helps.

Dave

Re: New York Times Editorial

Dear Mr. Marquise,

This letter is in response to your request of May 22, 2012, for review of the above referenced editorial for publication pursuant to the Federal Bureau of Investigation's (FBI) Prepublication Review Policy (PRP) and Prepublication Review Manual (POL05-001-RMD).

Your submission was reviewed pursuant to the terms of the PRP and we concluded that none of the information presented falls within a restricted area of disclosure. Therefore, there is no objection to the publication of your editorial, as presented.

You may include your past FBI employment as part of your biographical data, providing that the FBI is given no more emphasis than other similar biographical information. In addition, please incorporate a disclaimer advising readers that the opinions expressed in the editorial are yours and not those of the FBI.

Should you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact [redacted] at 540-868-1697 or via e-mail at [redacted]. Thank you for your participation in the FBI's prepublication review process.
